

Since the days of Samurai

二唐刃物鍛造所
Swordsmiths' Nigara Knives
with a history of over 350 years

A technique passed down since the days of Samurai

The distinct ripple markings on our forged steel blade, known as “Anmon”, result from a unique Tsugaru forging technique original to our factory.

The “Anmon” design was inspired by the rippling water of the Anmon falls, found on the base of the World Heritage Shirakami Mountains. Dating back to the Edo Period over 350 years ago, this Nigara Forging technique with its numerous folds, result in the ripple marked blades that are sharp and extremely durable, resistant to rusting. With each one skillfully handcrafted, no two knives are the same.
